Major Leaguer Jaye Chapman speaks at Chipola FCA

Former Chipola College and Mosley High School baseball standout Jaye Chapman was the guest speaker at the Chipola Fellowship of Christian Athletes' Huddle on Jan. 17.

Chapman, who played at Chipola in 2005-06, played for seven years in the Atlanta Braves farm system and was traded this past season to the Chicago Cubs. He was called up in September of 2012 and finished the year on the Chicago Cubs Major League roster, pitching in 12 games.

Chapman shared with the students his experiences in high school, college, minor league baseball and this past season with the Cubs, saying, "God has directed and guided every step along the way." Through adversity and success, Chapman talked about how God had made him a better pitcher and a better witness for Christ. He encouraged the students to "Stay in the word, to pray and to find other Christians to talk to and worship with."

After his talk Chapman stayed for pictures and visited the dorm to talk to members of the Chipola baseball team before heading home to Panama City. Chapman is scheduled to report for Spring Training in Arizona in February.
