Chipola instructors to star in Advance Auto Parts video series

Chipola College Automotive instructors John Gardner and Chase Vlieg have been contracted by Advance Auto Parts corporate headquarters to develop a training system which includes writing, scripting and hosting 25 videos that Advance will use nationally as their team member training series.

Advance executives and a video production team will be on the Chipola campus Thursday, June 6, at 1 p.m., for a press conference and check presentation. Advance officials are expected to present a check to the college for $5,000 to help Chipola automotive students in need of funding to take their Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) examinations. Advance has also pledged thousands of dollars in tools and equipment for the college’s automotive program.

Chipola instructors Gardner and Vlieg recently travelled to Advance Auto Parts headquarters in Roanoke, Virginia, to discuss the project which has a scheduled completion date of February 2014. Gardner says, “We look forward to creating a successful training series, empowering parts specialists with the knowledge they need to be successful in the automotive parts industry. Our students will be able to use this training system and our program will benefit from the acquisition of tools, equipment and parts that Advance is providing. Our program, college and community will all benefit from this cooperate partnership.”

Bryan Gregory, Director of Training and Team Member Engagement for Advance Auto Parts, says, “Chipola’s instructors John and Chase will be the faces for our team member training. This video series will be used by thousands of employees to help them understand automotive concepts to better serve our customers.”
