Molineux's works performed

The spring semester of 2002 was a busy one for Chipola Junior College music instructor Dr. Allen Molineux with regards to performances of his musical compositions.

Chipola Junior College's Chamber Chorus sang his "A New Song" at the college's graduation ceremony on May 3.

He recently received word that his song cycle for soprano and three percussionists entitled "Crystals" had just been given two performances by a student ensemble under the direction of Professor Marc Wooldridge at Northwestern College in Iowa.

On April 22, his composition "Manipulations" for solo trombone was performed at Hastings College in Nebraska. It was also performed at a senior recital at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire on April 15. Also on April 15, during the University of Nebraska at Kearney's "New Music Festival," Molineux's "Eleven Etudes of Expression" for solo tuba was premiered by faculty member Robert Mitchell.

Molineux's "Down by the Old Third Stream" for vibraphone and double bass went international when it was performed at the Janacek Academy of Music and Dramatic Arts in Brno, Czech Republic on April 8.

His "Free Fancy" for solo flute was performed at the National Conference of the Christian Fellowship of Art Music Conference in Indianapolis on Feb. 22-23. It was performed by Loretta Contino, professor of flute at Butler University.

On Feb. 10, Molineux's piece "A Brief Diversion" for trumpet, trombone and piano was played by members of the new music ensemble "eklektikos" at the University of Prince Edward Island.

Molineux joined the Chipola music faculty in 1988, where he teaches instrumental music and music theory and directs the college's Rock and Jazz Band. Since 1971, he has published more than a dozen original compositions and has received numerous commissions. His published works range from solos and ensembles for woodwinds, brass and percussion to choral works.

He also directs the Dothan-based dance band, The Moonlighters. Molineux lives in Dothan with his wife, Bonnie, and their 10-year old son, Lyle.
