

Chipola Fall Festival is Wednesday

Chipola Junior College's Annual Fall Festival will be held Wednesday, Oct. 2, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., on the lawn of the Johnson Health Center.

In the event of inclement weather, the festival will be moved inside the Johnson Center.

The festivities will include giant inflatable games—the Titanic slide, bouncy boxing, giant joust and bungee run. Five-member teams from campus organizations will participate in relays and the great Tug of War. Relays will include the mattress race, izzy dizzy, sack race, balloon pop, three-legged race, orange pass and water cup. Fall Festival t-shirts will be awarded to the winners. Games will begin at 10:30 a.m.

A hamburger and hot dog cook-out lunch will be provided for CJC students and employees.

SGA also will give away door prizes during lunch. Several universities will have representatives on hand to recruit CJC students.

CJC Student Activities Coordinator, Nancy Johnson, says, "We invite all CJC students and employees to come down and enjoy some food and fun and to win some great door prizes."

Tickets on sale Thursday for Chipola's "You Can't Take It With You"

Tickets go on sale Thursday, Oct. 3 for the Chipola Junior College production of "You Can't Take It With You," which opens a four-day run, Oct. 17.

The hit comedy is all about the zany Sycamores. In contrast to these delightful people are the unhappy Kirbys. The plot shows how Tony, attractive young son of the Kirbys, falls in love with Alice Sycamore and brings his parents to dine at the Sycamore home on the wrong evening. The shock sustained by the Kirbys, who are invited to eat cheap food, shows Alice that marriage with Tony is out of the question.

The strange activities of certain members of the household—manufacture of fireworks in the home, the printing press in the parlor and Grandpa's disagreement with the income tax—add to the eccentricity of this delightful comedy.

The club has lined up some of the college's favorite employees for a good soaking: Bianca Bennet, Jeff Bodart, Lou Cleveland, Sharon Coleman, Rachel Coeey, Bryan Craven, President Dale O'Daniel, Nancy Johnson, and Nikki Johnson. Come by the Johnson Health Center between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. for this once in a lifetime chance to drench a teacher and support the CJC Science Club! We will have the catapult set up as long as the Fall Festival activities last, and as long as we can find willing targets for water balloons.

The CJC Collegiate FFA Chapter will hold its organizational meeting on Oct. 9 in Room Z-111 at 10 a.m. All former FFA members and others interested in joining are encouraged to attend. Dean Bud Riviere, club advisor looks forward to meeting with this new service organization.

Chipola reaches out to local schools

Chipola Junior College has joined the Florida Department of Education's Assistance Plus initiative to provide outreach programs for elementary, middle and high schools in the college's five-county district.

All 28 community colleges in Florida are involved in the program which includes the following components: articulation, remediation-reduction, certification and teacher training, community service, student volunteers, enrichment and pre-collegiate programs, curriculum design and revision, family literacy, tutoring, service learning and test preparation.

Dr. Joan Miller, CJC Dean of Student Services, coordinates Assistance Plus activities in the college district and provides information to other K-20 institutions. She said, "Since its inception, Chipola has pursued a strong relationship with its district, inviting and encouraging citizens to become involved in higher education. The activities included in the Assistance Plus initiative represent current efforts of the Chipola family to better serve the residents of our district. We are constantly working to improve our services and are exploring avenues to help us meet other identified needs."

Chipola currently supports the following efforts within the Assistance Plus program:

Chipola designed and implemented AA and AS degree programs for Title I paraprofessionals based on requirements of the Federal No Child Left Behind legislation. More than 80 local teacher's aides are enrolled in the program.

Chipola is involved in a Family Literacy program through two local county libraries which is designed to help parents and children improve their literacy level.

Chipola has been awarded a Talent Search grant to target potential first-generation college students. The program may include placing part-time career specialists in area middle and high schools, educational activities, and enrichment programs for parents.

Chipola has partnered with PAEC's WINGS (Winning Intellectually 'N' Gaining Safety), an after school program that provides tutoring for middle school students, as well as parenting sessions, GED prep, and basic computer skills.

“Chipola has pursued a strong relationship with its district, inviting and encouraging citizens to become involved in higher education.”

Chipola partnered with Dr. David Langston of the Norris Langston Youth Foundation, the Department of Juvenile Justice, and the Department of Lottery to present a half-day, motivational program entitled "The Game of Life" to all eighth graders in the college district.

Several courses in the CJC curriculum include a component for students to work one-on-one with public school students through tutoring and mentoring.

Chipola's Student Ambassadors provide motivational presentations at each of the district high schools.

Members of the Chipola Board of Trustees and college staff are actively involved in local school Advisory Councils.

Several Chipola faculty members provide teacher in-service activities annually through PAEC.

Chipola instituted a new "Partners" program with each district high school this past year. College staff visit each high school weekly to provide students with information about post-secondary education, including both academic and career planning. The program has been extremely well received by district school personnel, students and parents.

Chipola's Tutoring Initiative has provided tutors to three high schools in the College district who were classified as "D" schools in 2000-2001.

The College Reach-Out Program has provided tutoring services in mathematics, reading, and English to approximately 250 middle school students in two of the five counties in our service area.

Chipola has partnered with Tallahassee Community College, the Florida Department of Education, and Academic Systems, in a FIPSE grant proposal to create a national model for enrolling and graduating students. The grant would provide selected students with tutoring, and mentoring services and in the development of academic and career plans. The program also would provide opportunities for high school and community college faculty to collaborate in the development of materials and services for students.

J. David Armstrong Jr., chancellor of the Florida Community College System, said "Our colleges have a tradition of outreach to local schools to stimulate greater success for students who are excelling and to assist those who need extra help to reach their highest potential. Community colleges will continue seeking ways to help students be successful in education."
