STUDENT ACTIVITIES POLICY STATEMENT ON ADVISORS

All campus organizations must have a sponsor or advisor who is a full-time employee of Chipola College.

The role of the organization’s advisor is a most important one. It is imperative that the advisor attend meetings regularly, express his/her views, work with members of the group to develop an efficient and effective organization and ensure that college policies and procedures are followed. The advisor must be both accessible and interested and must provide whatever counsel or advice the group and its officers might seek from them. The advisor should:

A. Familiarize themselves with the Campus Organization Manual and follow its policies and procedures. Also ensuring that the members of the student organization follow the policies and procedures of the Campus Organization Manual.

B. Help make plans far enough in advance to avoid any difficulties in carrying activities.

C. Supervise all activities and events of the organization held on campus and apply for approval of such activities by completing and returning the student activity form to the Student Activities Office at least two weeks prior to the event.

D. Oversee the finances of the organization.

E. Work with the officers of the organization to promote efficient and effective administration of the organization.

F. Consult with the Student Activities Office when questions or problems regarding the organization arise.

G. Help the officers get chaperones for events. All activities sponsored by an organization must have chaperones in attendance. Security must be arranged in advance by contacting Harry Fleener. Chipola students must show CC identification to attend college-sponsored activities and may bring no more than 3 non-Chipola guests. The non-Chipola guests must also show photo I.D.

H. Help the officers of the organization enforce the college policy which dictates that the possession or the consumption of alcoholic beverages and narcotics at all student functions on/off campus is strictly prohibited. All members of the organization, the advisor, and chaperones attending the function share this responsibility.

I. Remind students that problems may arise with guests who attend the functions of the organization. Members of student organizations are directly responsible for all guests who come to their function and are responsible for the conduct of their guests at college functions.

J. Insure that a representative of the organization be appointed to attend all regularly scheduled SGA meetings.

I agree to comply with the aforementioned responsibilities.

Student Activities are regarded as an essential element in the total educational program at CC in that they contribute to the academic, recreational, and cultural climate of the college. For this reason the college reserves the right to charter all organizations and require them to adhere to the following guidelines. (All necessary forms are included in this manual.)

1. Complete and return the Official Registration form to the Student Activities Office by the announced deadline. This form must be completed annually for the club to be officially recognized.

3. Submit the Activity Request Form to the Student Activities Office for all projects, functions, and activities at least two weeks prior to the proposed date.

4. Turn in a Facility Request Form to the Property Records Office (Wayne Hill) to reserve school facilities at least two weeks prior to the proposed date. The Dean of Student Services must sign these forms before they are sent to Property Records.

To be eligible to receive the funds each club advisor must sign an Activity Funds Contract and each club must participate in the following campus activities: Fall Festival, Homecoming Week, Spring Frolics, Senior Visitation Day, all regularly scheduled SGA meetings. To request funds the club advisor must complete an Activity Funds Request Form one week in advance. If a club uses funds but is not in compliance with the Activity Funds Contract, (pg. 23), the club will be required to repay the total amount of expended funds to the college.

GOAL PLANNING

It is critical for all groups to have clearly defined goals of objectives. The entire group membership should be actively involved in establishing these goals. This helps to build a feeling of “group” identity. In addition, specific means or actions should be developed to insure that the goals are implemented. This approach should be used by the group leader.

A. Have the members individually brainstorm goals for the organization in written form.

B. Form sub-groups of four members each for the purpose of sharing individual written goals. It is best to form sub-groups of individuals who are not well aquatinted with one another. Have each person read his/her goal statement and encourage each sub-group to openly discuss the goals that are presented by its members.

C. Follow the sub-group sharing sessions with an open discussion of the entire group. All goals from the group should be recorded on a tear pad or chalkboard prior to the discussion of any one goal.

D. Develop the entire goal list and then open the discussion; attempt to lead the group toward consensus on goals they feel are most important to the organization.

E. Establish a rough priority of the goals and begin work on means or actions for implementation. Goals should be general in nature and means should be the specific actions that will be taken in order to reach the goals.

F. Record the specific goals and means that have been developed, and assist the group in specific plans for implementing the means. A task management procedure should be used at this point.

G. Print and distribute the goals and means to all members of the organization and to other individuals and groups that interact with the organization.

H. Review the goals and means on a regular basis reviewed as part of the evaluation process. Modifications should be made as necessary.
PARLIAMENTARY LAW

Parliamentary Law is the code which controls procedures in deliberative assemblies, assisting an assembly in carrying out its purposes. On a more personal plane, Parliamentary Law is the code of ethics of working together. Parliamentary Law is based upon five principles:

1. All members have equal rights, privileges, and obligations.
2. Only one subject may be discussed at a time.
3. Every proposition presented is entitled to full and free discussion.
4. The rights of the minority must be protected.
5. The will of the majority must rule.

There are other principles which also influence parliamentary procedure and conduct:

1. Each member of the assembly shall abide by the rules of courteous conduct.
2. The intent of the group must be determined.
3. Those to whom power is delegated must be chosen by democratic process.
4. Every member has the right to know at all times what questions are before the assembly and what its effect will be.
5. Motions have a definite and logical order of procedure.
6. The simplest and most direct procedure for accomplishing a purpose should be followed.
7. Parliamentary rules exist to facilitate the transaction of business and to promote cooperation and harmony.
8. The chairperson must always maintain the necessary position of impartiality.

Recognition of these 13 principles will show the cause of the various rules established and be known collectively as Parliamentary Law. The practice of following accepted parliamentary procedure is a direct result of the establishment of exact knowledge of parliamentary law.

GENERAL ORDER OF BUSINESS

The practical application of the principles of Parliamentary Law follows a well-established pattern which should be applied to all general meetings. There is a general order in which business is discussed. There is a method of introducing and discussing business; and there are established ways in which business may be determined. Under common usage, the general order of business includes:

1. Call to Order
2. Invocation
3. Roll Call
4. Reading and Approval of Minutes of Previous Meeting
5. Communications
6. Reports of Officers
7. Reports of Committees
8. Unfinished Business
9. New Business
10. Announcements
11. Adjournment
It is necessary that a quorum be present at a meeting of an organization before it can legally transact business. The number constituting a quorum generally is specified in the constitution or bylaws of the organization. In the absence of such specification, a quorum consists of a majority of the members.

INTRODUCTION OF BUSINESS

Business may be introduced by motion, resolution or report; and no debate is in order until such a proposition is pending. A member obtains the floor by rising and addressing the presiding officer, who recognizes him by announcing his name. The member makes his motion, it is seconded by another, the chair states the question by repeating the motion and then it is open to debate and amendment.

A motion should be stated in the form “I move that…” followed by a statement of the proposal which the member wishes to bring before the assembly. This is the only correct phraseology for proposing a motion. The form “I move you” or “I make a motion” or, after discussion, “I so move” is incorrect. Statements beginning “I propose” or “I suggest” should not be recognized as motions. Aside from occasional, brief explanatory remarks, no discussion is permissible when a motion is being presented. Many organizations require that the motion be written before it is presented, as an aid to accuracy and the expedition of business.

DISCUSSION OF BUSINESS

The object of deliberative bodies is to formulate actions. For these actions to be effective, it is necessary to reach the mature judgement and decision of the group by means of free interchange of thought through discussion. This interchange of views must be such that it will enable the members of an assembly to arrive at an intelligent understanding of the proposition under consideration before disposing of it.

The right of every member to be heard and to participate fully in the discussion must be relevant to the subject before the body. When a speaker is granted the floor, it is for the purpose of discussing the pending question. If a speaker digresses from the subject, it is the duty of the presiding officer to request that the speaker keep his discussion relevant. Discussion should be clear and concise. The speaker is not talking for pleasure or entertainment, but to assist the assembly in arriving at a conclusion on the question under discussion. A member should be courteous, both when speaking and when another is speaking. Objectionable language should not be used, and any member may rise to point of order when the rules of decorum are abused.
DISPOSAL OF A QUESTION

Debate and deliberation on debatable motions should not be prematurely cut off or prevented. This is an infringement on the basic rights of members. However, all questions must come to an end. When it appears to the chairman that all debate has been offered, he should inquire of the assembly, “Is there any further discussion?” “Are you ready for the question?” The proper response to these queries is not to call “Question!” but to remain silent unless one wishes to discuss the motion. If the queries are unanswered, the chairman should put the question to a vote.

The most fundamental rule governing voting is that at least a majority vote is required to take action. Until a majority has spoken, nothing is to be changed. There are many ways in which a majority may be defined: Because of this diversity of definitions, a majority should be defined in the bylaws; however, in the absence of such provision, common laws specify that a majority is the majority of legal votes cast.

To Students and their Parents:

The two agreements below are designed primarily to protect our group members in the event that an emergency might require the immediate action parents would take if they were present and also, as a necessary precaution, to protect Chipola College from claims which might be made by members of the group and their parents.

In the years the college has been sponsoring off campus activities, incidents of the type covered by these agreements have been negligible. However, parents would not wish their sons or daughters to join a group under the auspices of an organization which disregarded even the remotest contingency.

We recommend that you read the provisions of this agreement carefully and if not fully understood, please consult with your attorney.
